John Hughes, Hawaii Fair Commissioner, who returned from the mainland today, insisting more money is needed.

With a plea for at least triple the sum of money appropriated by the last session of the legislature for Hawaii's part in the Panama-Pacific Exposition, John Hughes, commissioner, returned by the Manchuia this morning from San Francisco. Declaring that the $100,000 appropriated is inadequate to make an exhibit at the exposition in keeping with those of other nations, whose plans are now being carried out on the fair site, and believing that some means is to be found by which $300,000 can be raised to supplement the territorial appropriation, Hughes held a conference with H. P. Wood, chairman of the commission, before the steamer docked this morning. Wood had boarded the Manchuia as one of the commissioners representing civic bodies to welcome Governor-General Francis Burton Harrison. Both Wood and Hughes stated that a meeting of the commissioners will be held in a few days to hear the report of the latter and pass on the tentative plans he has prepared for the exhibit building.

Realizing the enormous benefits which Hawaii will receive through the exposition, and the relation these benefits bear to the showing Hawaii makes at the world's fair, Hughes said this morning that the failure of the territory to make an exhibit presenting to the best advantage the features of the islands would mean in the end a great loss for Hawaii.

While in San Francisco the tentative plans for the building were made and these will be passed on by the commissioners at their next meeting. To properly carry out the plans for the exhibit structure and the exhibit to be placed in it, the cost will be $300,000 in place of $100,000 estimated by Hughes. It is possible, he added to erect the building on the $50,000, using the balance, or $50,000, for exhibits, but the result would not be satisfactory nor show to advantage the attractions of Hawaii, affirms the commissioner. Incidentally, he says that he does not believe the bill introduced in congress by Delegate Kalaniana'ole for $200,000 for the territory's exhibit will be passed. "I consider it doubtful if the bill will be enacted," said Hughes. "I think the best thing we can do is to raise, in one way or another, the balance needed, and the quicker we raise the money the better. Just now material is cheap in San Francisco; it is the opportune time to build."

"When I saw what states were doing and foreign countries, I realized at once the inadequacy of our appropriation to put up an exhibit to compare favorably with others. They are spending thousands of dollars. They realize that the money is well invested and that it will come back to the country which spends it many fold."

"It is undoubtedly the greatest opportunity Hawaii has ever had to show the world its wonders. The exposition offers a chance for Hawaii to show the whole world what it does and has to offer. I shall never be satisfied until we get enough money to make a fit showing there, enough money to make an exhibit which will do credit to us all and make us all profit by it."

City Officials

Closely upon the heels of the action taken by the Kapahulu Improvement club in passing a resolution to oppose a license being granted to Macame Puaoli to run her hula-hula resort, which was given publication in the Star-Bulletin yesterday, and moving with the current of general dissatisfaction over the lax regulations of public dance halls, a plan is being formed by city and county officials, which promises to bring about two things:—An amendatory ordinance making more stringent regulations for dance halls, and a municipal pavilion for dancing to be located in one of the public parks.

Supervisor John Markham, chairman of the police committee of the board of supervisors, P. L. Weaver, first deputy city and county attorney, Mayor Joseph J. Fern and others appear to be strong backers of the municipal dance hall project, and they have announced that they will do all

WALLER STEALS MARCH ON U. S. WARRANT SERVER

By stealing a march on the federal officials this morning Gilbert J. Waller, candidate for governor of the territory, barely escaped arrest by the United States marshal.

The warrant for his apprehension was duly issued and it Waller had not been aiding in entertaining Governor-General Harrison, probably would have been served. As it actually occurred, however, Deputy Marshal Harry Holt could not locate his man, and before he had found him Waller had learned of the warrant, appearing in person at the marshal's office.

Waller, it developed, was wanted to explain why he should not be punished for contempt of court, growing out of a failure to appear for jury duty during the April term of federal court. He was taken before Judge Dole and gave a satisfactory story, explaining he had misunderstood the court's instructions. On that theory he was discharged.

Waller was subpoenaed last spring to serve as a petit juror. On his first appearance in answer to the summons he asked to be excused, as he might want to go to Washington, D. C. The court advised him that if he learned later he must make the journey he should appear again and ask to be excused from duty.

Waller explained that he had understood the court to say that if he found it necessary to go to the mainland he could consider himself excused from the jury duty. He made the trip on this understanding, failing to report to the court again.

FATHER COMES FROM THE EAST TO HELP SON

Determined to stand by his son who shot and fatally wounded Charles R. Guertler in a hula resort at Kapahulu Park some weeks ago, E. H. Marshall, father of J. W. Marshall, who is now detained at Oahu prison awaiting trial, arrived in Honolulu on the Manchuia this morning, having traveled the distance from Pennsylvania to Hawaii that he might come to his son's defense.

Shortly after his arrival here, Mr. Marshall visited the Oahu prison in company with the headworker of the Palama Settlement, who is said to be a close friend of the young man. Mr. Marshall was allowed to see his son and spent more than an hour in the cell. The meeting between father and son was touching. All efforts to locate the father this morning were futile, but it was stated by friends that he will remain in Honolulu until after the trial when, if his son is acquitted, he will try and induce him to return to the family home in Pennsylvania.

The engagement has just been announced in Manila of Lieutenant Emory T. Smith, aide-de-camp to Major General Bell of the islands, to the daughter of Adjutant General Henry P. McCain of Manila.

HONOLULU WELCOMES HARRISON GOVERNOR-GENERAL NON-COMMITTAL ON POLICY

Making First Trip
Across the Pacific

Governor-general Francis Burton Harrison, appointed to the office of federal chief executive of the Philippines, is the guest of Honolulu today. Civic bodies of the city, local Democrats and members of the Yale alumni of the University Club are joining together for his entertainment. Before five hours had elapsed after he set foot on the Alakea wharf, two receptions had been held in his honor—the first a public reception at the executive building under the auspices of civic bodies, the second a Democratic reception on the roof-garden of the Young hotel.

And also within five hours after he landed here, a committee representing the Yale alumni of the university club had taken him on an automobile tour of the city. He was shown the view of the island from the Pal, the beautiful resident districts of the city, and many sights which brought from him expressions of delight. And even more, in that time he was the guest of honor at a luncheon at the university club. With Yale men sitting around his table, one or two of whom were former classmates, the new governor-general praised Honolulu and the hospitality of its citizens and his pleasure at meeting them.

This is Mr. Harrison's first visit here, in fact the first time he has been on the Pacific ocean; the same is true of Mrs. Harrison and their four children. The last feature of the program for the entertainment of Mr. Harrison is his inspection of the Ewa plantation.

The Manchuia was sighted at dawn, and by 6.54 the customs launch in which rode a committee of three, representing civic bodies of Honolulu to welcome Mr. Harrison, and briefly outline the plans made for his entertainment. Wallace R. Farrington represented the Merchants' Association, H. P. Wood, the Chamber of Commerce, and C. G. Boekus, the Commercial Club.

Later, when the liner had been made fast at the dock, the Yale committee met Mr. Harrison; and after a brief reception aboard when the governor-general met a dozen or two prominent Democrats, the Yale committee, composed of J. R. Galt, Judge Charles F. Clemons and former Governor George R. Carter, took the guest of honor on the tour of the city, which ended about 11:30, when the machine brought up at the capitol building for the public reception.

C. W. Ashford was chairman of the Democratic reception committee. Among others present, as committee members, were Senator James L. Coker, Senator C. P. Iauko, Mayor J. J. Fern, Judge A. A. Wilder, E. M. Watson, Representative D. M. Kupfha-

GORDON OF POLICE OFFICIALS SEEK OPIUM ON THE MANCHURIA

Second - Class Passenger Is
Under Suspicion as Poppy
Drug Smuggler

A dozen police officials, drawn from the federal, territorial and city and county ranks, left the customs launch at an early hour this morning, and launched at an early hour this morning, boarded the Pacific Mail liner Manchuia in from San Francisco, and immediately began to get busy among the four hundred passengers included in the several classes, paying more particular attention to the travelers occupying accommodation in the second class and steerage.

The duties devolving upon these officers were not concluded with the berthing of the Big Manchuia at Alakea wharf. To three officers were assigned the duty of trailing a mysterious intermediate passenger, who was reported to be due to leave the liner at this port.

The reason for the presence of these police officials on board the big liner was the echo of the gigantic opium ring scandal that recently has stirred the entire list of coast cities and is now reaching to Honolulu. Their presence followed a request wirelessly by Captain Andrew Dixon asking that a secret service man be sent aboard the Manchuia before she docked.

The message was received late last night by H. Hackfeld & Company, the local representatives for the liner. As no particulars were given, a considerable air of mystery surrounded the movement of a squad of uniformed and plain clothes men who swarmed up the side of the Manchuia as the vessel lay at quarantine anchorage and awaited pratique.

A second-class passenger, who had purchased a ticket from San Francisco to Honolulu was the person that not only aroused the suspicion of federal officers on the coast, but also created a decided stir in local shipping circles.

The collector at the port is understood to have been informed that a man whose actions were viewed with much suspicion boarded the vessel at San Francisco, believed to be the custodian of a quantity of opium. The instructions handed out were that the effects belonging to this passenger be given a rigid examination when landed at the wharf.

City and county officers spent an hour in making their inspection of the

Schmidt Clever Criminal, Say Police of New York

[Associated Press Cable]
NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 15.—That the "Rev." Hans Schmidt, accused of the murder of Anna Ammiller and the mutilation of her body, is a remarkably intelligent criminal and not a religious fanatic at all, is the contention of the police, who are still busy with the sensational discoveries that led up to his arrest and alleged full confession. The police said today, after following several clues, that Schmidt is a keen, cool and desperate criminal with a bad record in the past. They announce that a search of his effects has disclosed counterfeiting plates and dies for making bogus coins that are a marvel of skill. Detectives are now engaged in unravelling the story of his intimacy with a Dr. Ernest Muret, a dentist of this city. Schmidt is said to have closely resembled Muret. Muret was a dabbler in gynecology and it is thought it was he who dismembered the body of the girl whom the pseudopriest is accused of wronging and then killing.

ASCHAFFENBURG, Germany, Sept. 16.—The parents of Schmidt stated today, that their son is congenitally abnormal and that he obtained admission to the clerical schools by the use of forged certificates.
